I. NHBP Background

NHBP is the political successor to the Potawatomi of the Huron, whose leaders were treaty signatories to numerous treaties with the United States. The most prominent treaties to which the Band's predecessors were signatories to were the 1821 Treaty of Chicago, pursuant to which the Band ceded most of interest in its territories in Lower Michigan but retained a 4-mile square Reservation (the Nottawaseppi Reserve) which was later expanded to 99 Sections of land under the Treaty of September 19, 1827, and the 1833 Treaty of Chicago (Supplementary Articles dated September 27, 1933).

NHBP were one of several Bands required to remove from Michigan to Reservation lands west of the Mississippi River under the terms of the 1833 Treaty of Chicago. The Band's members were to be forcibly removed by the U.S. Army under the command of General James Brady; however, many extended families escaped or evaded their Army escorts and returned to Calhoun County, Michigan. After receiving a "back-payment" of annuity moneys, Band members acquired two (2) parcels of land totaling 120 acres establishing the Pine Creek Settlement in 1845. The patents for these parcels, issued in 1848, were to be held in trust by the Michigan Governor for the Members of the Band. These lands became known as the Pine Creek Indian Reservation, and that Reservation has served as the governmental and social/cultural center for NHBP from 1845 to the present.

Federal Reaffirmation- Although the Pine Creek Indian Reservation was considered a "state" reservation, the Department of the Interior's Office of Federal Acknowledgement found that NHBP had maintained regular contact and political relations with the Bureau of Indian Affairs and its predecessor agencies. NHBP attempted to reorganize under the Wheeler-Howard Act in 1934, but fell under Commissioner of Indian Affairs John Collier's general decision in 1940 not to further extend Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) services to Indians of Michigan's Lower Peninsula due to insufficient appropriations.

NHBP were one of the first Tribes to seek "acknowledgment" under the new Federal Acknowledgment Process established in 1978. On December 21, 1995, the Department of the Interior recognized NHBP as a federally recognized Indian Tribe pursuant to the Federal Acknowledgment Process (60 Fed. Reg. 66315).

NHBP's Health and Human Services Department ("HHSD") Operations- HHSD includes a staff of approximately 65 persons within multiple service units: Administrative, Clinical, Behavioral Health, Dental, Community Health, and Pharmacy. HHSD operations are carried out across its three sites: on the Pine Creek Reservation in Fulton, near downtown Grand Rapids, and inside Firekeepers Casino located in Battle Creek.

HHSD Mission: To serve the Tribal community in accordance with the HHS Code of Ethics by providing and coordinating access to quality, compassionate, culturally based health and human services to promote the overall wellbeing for the next seven generations.
